My brother, who was studying in a university thousands of miles away, called to say that he had pinkeye, and pinkeye was also prevalent locally. Many of my neighbors and classmates had this disease, so pinkeye was rampant.

But I think if you have this kind of pinkeye, you can take medicine to deal with it with a needle. But if you have another kind of pinkeye, you will be in trouble. If you see others with more money, better grades, better reputation than yourself, you will get red eyes, and this is the kind of pinkeye

I read in an article such a truth: geographical environment influence people, in yunnan, sichuan and guizhou area, are uninhibited people because the locality has a mountainous landform that is tall and straight up into the sky, the locals think this mountain heart can produce the feeling of boldness and generosity, but over time, this feeling will melt into the blood, uninhibited personality is formed. Jiangnan people are more elegant because there are many lakes and gardens.

It can be seen that the external environment has an impact on people, and we should make the best of it and avoid the bad. As far as I am concerned, books are the most influential external factors for people, so we should read more good books, which will surely have a great and beneficial impact on us.

I went to buy pears for my hard-working father and went to a fruit stand. The price was very cheap, So I bought a few jin. In the process, I picked out a rotten pear, and discarded it. Finally on the scale, the stall owner said: "Take another pear for five dollars."

Then he picked up a pear and weighed it, saying, "Five yuan twenty cents, give me five." I gratefully paid for it.

On getting back and I had a look: that rotten pear was inside.

Tonight I saw the shooting star, it flashed across the sky and then disappeared, but the twinkling of an eye was deeply in my heart, the eyes constantly reproduce that moment.

Meteors have a short but brilliant life. I can't help thinking of people like Lei Feng who had a short, luminous life.

At night, the moon shines on the earth, and we all know that moonlight is reflected sunlight, and sunlight shows its light in another form.

I thought of the ancient scholars who wrote books, whose thoughts were like reflected sunlight to us -- reflections of the thoughts of they that are no longer with us.

In the park, I often see a white diagonal line at one corner of the square lawn, which is very incongruous, caused by people's desire to approach the road, where there should be grass.

It can be seen from the lack of people's quality. I hope relevant departments will pay attention to it and forbid this phenomenon explicitly.
